MEN ARE SCARCE.

Western Newfoundland Vessels are Hard Pressed for Crews.

"The difficulty of procuring crews for the bank fishery seems to increase every year," says the St. Johns, N. F., Trade Review. "The western outfitters are finding it extremely hard to get their men this year, even though they are offering higher wages than usual. The explanation lies in the fact that the Labrador fishery has proved more attractive than usual in the matter of wages the last few years, and all the available northern men are absorbed in that direction, while the southern contingent are finding more and more employment across the Gulf every year. There is no doubt about it, the bank fishery is the hardest end of the fishery business, and unless men get extra wages to prosecute it they will fight shy of it."

SOUTHERN SALT MACKEREL.

One Small Lot Sells at Thirteen Dollars Per Barrel.

The southern seining fleet brought home very few salt mackerel this year. Two small lots from two of Orlando Merchant's vessels sold to William H. Jordan & Co. at $12 per barrel and a 12-barrel lot from sch. Madonna sold to Fred Bradley at $13 per barrel. A small lot of tinkers from one of Davis Bros.' vessels brought $5 per barrel from that firm.

Good Stock.

Sch. Annie Greenlaw, Capt. George G. Hamor, stocked $4604 as the result of her recent southern seining trip, the crew sharing $95.32.

LOBSTERS FISHED OUT.

Price Doubled and Nova Scotia
Fears for Industry.

A despatch from Yarmouth, N. S., yesterday says:

The unusual backwardness of the Nova Scotia lobster season is attributed by the fishermen to the fact that the lobsters along the Nova Scotia coast are rapidly being fished out. Many predict that soon the industry will fail to be profitable to the Maine lobster fleet which gets its catch here.

The catch this year is expected to be only one-half the average amount, and the price has advanced to almost double the usual figure, from 17 to 18 cents being paid for each.

The Nova Scotia coast offers the best lobster supply on the Atlantic coast, its products finding markets throughout eastern Canada, in Portland, Me., and Boston.

Bad weather has interfered. Maine lobstermen report a trip consuming almost a month, while heretofore the time consumed has generally been within 10 days.

HAS RECORD FARE.

Sch. Manomet at New York with 12,000 Mackerel.

BIGGEST TRIP FOR YEARS.

Several Other Netters There with Good Fares This Morning

Sch. Manomet, Capt. William Price, of the netting fleet, arrived at New York just after noon today with 12,000 fresh mackerel in count. The fish were taken last night off Barnegat lightship.

The fare is the largest taken by a netter for many years and one of the largest ever landed in that fishery.

At the present high price that is being paid, Capt. Price and his men will realize a good stock and share.

The following netters are at New York this morning:

Sch. Olive May, 1800 large fresh mackerel.
Sch. Laura Reed, 3500 large fresh mackerel.

Sch. Elenora, 3000 large fresh mackerel.
Sch. Carrie E., 500 large fresh mackerel.
Sch. Arrow, 212 large fresh mackerel.

Sloop Lear C., 1500 large fresh mackerel.
Sloop Old Dominion, 2000 large fresh mackerel.

Sch. A. C. Newhall, 2500 large fresh mackerel.

Sch. Hobo, 3500 large fresh mackerel.

Sch. Mabelle E. Leavitt, 5000 large fresh mackerel.

Sch. Priscilla, 3500 large fresh mackerel.

Sloop Pearl, 2000 large fresh mackerel.

Sch. Massasoit, 3000 large fresh mackerel.

Steamer Dorcas, 1600 large fresh mackerel.

A special to the Times from its Liverpool, N. S., correspondent states that no mackerel have been reported off there as yet, which would indicate that the fish are late in striking on the Cape Shore, as generally the first catches are made there in the traps before hauls are secured by the seining fleet. Schs. Mary F. Curtis and Tartar were in there the day the letter was dated, May 20.

May 23.

FINE POLLOCK FARE.

Sch. Pauline Strikes Good Fishing off Chatham.

Sch. Pauline, Capt. Charles Forbes, which has only been out a few days, arrived here this morning with a big trip, having 9000 pounds of salt cod, 9000 pounds of salt pollock and 87,000 pounds of fresh pollock. The little craft is full of fish to the hatches, so full in fact that what salt she had left is piled on the cabin house in fish boxes.

The Pauline had been fresh Rips fishing, but on this last trip Capt. Forbes kept his dories on and also took a seine and boat and went down off Chatham, where pollock and cod usually school in good shape about this time of the year. He found the fish all right and worked the seine at every opportunity, with the result of a full fare in a short time.

ICE IS GONE.

Vessels Can Now Reach the Magdalen Islands.

The Dominion gulf ice report of Monday states that there is now no ice at Cape Tormentine, Straits of Canso, Meat Cove or the Magaalen islands. This means that the large fleet of salt bankers and shackers can now get to the Magdalen islands for their much-desired baitings.

BLACK CAT IS LUCKY.

Crew of Netter Manomet Has One For Ship's Pet.

Latter's Fare Largest Ever Taken in One Set of Nets.

A special to the Times this afternoon says that the captains and crews of the netters at Fulton dock, as well as the Fulton market men, are all talking about the remarkable catch of the netting sch. Manomet, Capt. William Price, of this port, which brought in 12,000 large fresh mackerel in count as reported in the first edition of the Times.

The despatch states that the whole fare was taken at one set of nets, and many men of the fleet say they never remember of the haul being duplicated in one set, while the wise ones in the market claim that it is the biggest one set netting trip ever landed there, as well as one of the very largest ever brought to that port by a netter in the history of the southern mackerel fishery.

The fare was taken 20 miles southeast of Barnegat lightship, and Capt. Price says he was the only netter fishing there within a radius of five miles. He also reports seeing no schools, and that the water is not firing, which, of course makes it bad for the seiners but just what the netters need in their business.

Capt. Price and his crew are not superstitious, but they have on board a pet in the shape of a large black cat, black all over, except for a little white spot on the very tip of its tail. They call the feline a mascot and a good working mascot it appears to be.

The following netters arrived at Newport this afternoon:

Sloop Magnolia, 400 large fresh mackerel.
Sloop Barbara, 600 large fresh mackerel.
Sloop J. W. Caswell, 300 large fresh mackerel.

Sloop Dart, 1000 large fresh mackerel.

These are all Provincetown netters and are the first netting fares landed at Newport this season.

The following netters arrived at New York late this afternoon:

Sch. Robert C. Harris, 1200 large fresh mackerel.
Sch. Fitz A. Oakes, 3400 large fresh mackerel.

FOR THE MAGDALENS.

Big Feet Got Away from Souris, P. E. I., on Monday.

Telegrams from Amherst Report Plenty of Herring There.

A special to the Times from its regular correspondent at Souris, P. E. I., states that the big fleet of fishing vessels, both American and Canadian, which have been harbored there for some time, waiting for a chance to get to the Magdalen islands, got away Monday afternoon, although there was still much ice around East Point.

There are no steamers yet from Souris to the Magdalens. Sch. Massachusetts came over Sunday and tried to make the harbor, but could not get in for ice and then tried to make Georgetown with better success. The ice got a big push on Sunday, by reason of the southerly wind.

Telegraphic news from the Magdalens to Souris reports that there is plenty of herring there.
